

MONOGRANO FELICETTI

Stemming from the genius of one of the greatest, yet mostly unknown Italian agronomists, who named it after Senator Raffaele Cappelli, this stubborn and generous wheat embodies the sun of the Murgia region and the veritable, genuine tastes of the bygone century. It exudes the fragrances of fresh farm milk, mashed potatoes and roasted chestnuts. It has the toothsome and lively mouthfeel of buttery breadcrumbs, with an alluring final note of sea salt.

MONOGRANO FELICETTI

This resilient and rich variety of wheat is at its best when farmed in the sunny fields of Apulia, before being perfected by our master pasta makers. When Matt pasta cooks, it releases a summery bouquet of hay, desiccated coconut and stretched curd. Its ancient taste reminds of stone cooked bread, butter and bamboo shoots.
